

MATRIMONY,

OR

MARRIAGE MADE EASY.

HOW TO WOO AND HOW TO BE WOOED.

IN TWO PARTS.

BY SARAH B. LAMBERT.

This work is the only one of the kind ever published, and can be perused with interest and profit, by every lady or gentleman who expects at any time to enter the marriage state, or who feel desirous of obtaining and retaining the affections of a congenial partner and companion.

CONTENTS.

Chapter 1st. Matrimony. 2d. Love. 3d. The Necessity of Marriage. 4th. Effects of Marriage. 5th. Instructions in Courting. 6th. The Authoress's Experience. 7th. A Young Widow's Experience. 8th. An Old Maid. 9th. The Wedding Day. 10th. Effects of Celibacy—Sad Experience. 11th. Notions of Beauty. 12th. Sudden Love. 13th. How to Produce Love at First Sight. 14th. How to Retain Love. 15th. Tax on Bachelors. 16th. Delay and Dalliance. 17th. Various Ways of Courting. 18th. How to Court by Letter—My Experience. 19th. Advice to True Lovers. 20th. Proportions of Married Couples. 21st. Deceit and Discovery. 22d. Success. 23d. Advice to the Unmarried. 24th. Advice to the Married. 25th. A Fool's Advice. 26th. Miscellaneous, &c., &c., &c. 27. "Love Charms," "Powders," "Elixers," "French Inventions," &c., &c., &c., their Uses, Composition, and effects.

This highly interesting and instructive work is written and published by the authoress, and sold by her only at the low price of sixty cents per copy. Sent by mail securely sealed, &c., and postpaid on receipt of price. At the present low price the authoress can not afford to employ agents. Consequently all orders must be sent directly to her.

Address

MRS. SARAH B. LAMBERT,

Greenpoint, Kings Co., N. Y.

THE MATRIMONIAL ADVERTISER,

Published Semi-Monthly at Greenpoint, Kings Co., N. Y.

In connection with my Matrimonial Office, I am now publishing a paper devoted to Literature, Poetry, Fine Arts, and the interests of the Unmarried and those who may favor me with their patronage. Through this medium parties seeking congenial partners may advertise their wants, and establish, by means of correspondence, a thorough interchange of thought and feeling on the great subject of all subjects—MATRIMONY. For instance, a respectable lady or gentleman residing in any part of the Loyal States, seeking a favorable Matrimonial alliance, can send an advertisement for insertion in the columns of the ADVERTISER, giving description of their personal appearance, position in society, &c., together with their wishes in regard to the person they desire to correspond with. By this means parties can be placed in direct communication with congenial spirits of the opposite sex.

Advertisements, to secure insertion in this department, must be written in plain concise terms, accompanied by the price, which is one dollar each insertion for ten lines or less: ten cents for each additional line. No objectionable advertisement of any kind will be inserted in the columns of the ADVERTISER.

Specimen copies mailed to any address on receipt of price—ten cents.

Address,

SARAH B. LAMBERT,

Greenpoint, Kings Co., N. Y.

OFFICE OF MRS. SARAH B. LAMBERT,

MATRIMONIAL AGENCY,

Greenpoint, N. Y.

DEAR READER:

The Matrimonial advertisement published by me is done in no jesting or money-grasping mood—far from it; and if you have answered the same out of idle curiosity, as I doubt not many have done and will do, I beg of you to lay aside all levity and frivolity, and give this all-important subject a few moments' careful and candid consideration. There is no subject so important to our happiness and well-being, and the well-being of humanity, and none so little understood, and so grossly mismanaged as Matrimony. If the merchant or man of business wishes to procure a house, farm, horse, cow, or any article for consumption, use, or enjoyment, he at once puts himself in communication with the parties most likely to put him in possession of the desired commodity. In fact, he goes to work as a man of business, in a business-like manner, and he at once obtains the desired object. The same man feels the need of a partner for life, and then how different and unbusiness-like his course! He seems to forget or discard all ideas of business capacity, and I might almost say manhood, and reduces himself to the position of the merest tyro in the Art of all arts—Love-Making!

He has had no training for or instruction in the work, consequently he fails in nine cases out of ten; and by such failure he injures himself sadly, and mankind very materially and beyond the power of recovery. The same argument applies with equal force to females. Not one in fifty knows how to be loved or wooed. I know this by sad experience, for experience I have had. They leave all to nature and circumstances, and in most cases both fail them, and they are doomed to a life of single blessedness and celibacy, which means, in simple words, premature death; or they take up with some poor worthless creature that they can not and do not love, and drag out a life of misery and woe, worse than death.

Now I hold to the idea that all can and should marry happily, and with a partner suitable for their position or condition in life. This can be done only by making your wants known, and thus, in a measure, reducing the matter of love-making and matrimony to a state of trade, and conducting the business, as you would any other, in a business-like manner.

It has been my province, for the past five years, to point out to thousands, in my humble way, the proper course to pursue in order to obtain a suitable and congenial companion for life, and of assisting them, through my "Matrimonial Agency," "Matrimonial Record," and "Book of Experience," to consummate this much-desired object.

By some I may be called an enthusiast, and by others a person afflicted with a species of matrimonial insanity. In answer, I will only say, that if insane on this subject, there is at least some method in my madness. From the past five years' experience I think I fully understand the work before me, and Providence permitting, I shall continue to labor for the benefit of my sex, and while benefiting and aiding my own, it can but result in good to both sexes. I do not wish to be misunderstood. My chief design in this matter is to make myself useful, and I am fully aware that if I am consulted, my plan adopted, and my advice followed, my aim will be fulfilled much to my satisfaction and to the benefit and happiness of my friends.

Knowing by sad experience the difficulties, vexations, and mortifications which young and inexperienced people, matrimonially inclined, have to encounter in their efforts to procure suitable partners, I have written a work for their benefit, in which I have attempted, in a concise, but plain and easy manner, to disclose, to such as will listen to me, the real secret of the art of Love-Making; or, in other words, to initiate them into the mysteries of Courtship. This publication has cost me much study and labor, as I have not only embodied my own experience—I might have said sad experience—in matters of the heart; but I have also the advantage of the experience of many others, all of which will be found interesting, and the reader has the full benefit of the whole. I have been very careful to avoid anything of an objectionable nature, and trust that my efforts have been duly appreciated.

I can be consulted at any time by my friends and patrons on matters of Love, and in perfect confidence. Any young lady or gentleman wishing to profit by my advice and experience, or wishing any assistance from me can make free to address me at any time, and they can rely upon my prompt and confidential aids. Full description of my book on Love will be found in my circular.

Trusting that I may claim the confidence and support of all interested in the great subject of matrimony, and hoping that all who desire it may be happily wedded to a congenial spirit, for

'Tis happiness to woo, and bliss to wed,
And rapture hovers o'er the marriage bed;
And in the favors of Lucinda kind
Those feelings are united and refined.
Thus nought beneath the boundless heaven can bless
Like holy marriage and its fruitfulness.

I am very respectfully and confidentially,

SARAH B. LAMBERT.

PROF. DELANO'S
ORIENTAL FRAGRANTIE,
OR
PERFUME OF LOVE.

Mrs. Lambert would respectfully inform her friends and patrons that she has procured the Agency for the United States and Canada, for this celebrated and world-renowned Turkish article, which she imports fresh by each steamer, and is able to furnish to her friends at the regular retail rates as now sold by the manufacturer at his office in Europe. This article will be mailed postpaid to any address in the loyal States or Canada, on receipt of the price, which will be found below.

This intoxicating perfume, which has of late enamored the fashionable world abroad, possesses a twofold usefulness. It contains the volatile essence of Turkish plants known in the seraglios and harems of the East as possessing the power to create Love, and greatly influence the affections, producing a sentiment of oneness or unity in Love, even in the most roving of minds. This virtue renders the Fragrantie invaluable to persons who feel the absence or loss of the affections of those whose love they prize. There are many in this country and Europe who cannot sufficiently express the gratitude they feel at the beneficial effects of this preparation. Its action is soothing, strengthening, and passion-creating; thus combining a continued happiness, a perennial vigor, and a capacity for the enjoyment of the sensuous sweets of existence, by creating a desire for association. There is produced a warmth of feeling in the hearts of those whom it is intended to affect, thus promoting marriage and rendering conjugality a continued joy.

It speedily dispels all nervous fear, awakens the sluggish or dilatory lover, quickens the unappreciating friend, removes the bashfulness of the maiden, develops the heart-feelings, equalizes love, makes the rough path of peevish nature even, and opens in each breast a little heaven. To wives who feel or fear their husbands' love decay, it commends itself beyond all words. To lovers, or those who would be loved, its silent influence is hourly exerted with the happiest results. Its effects are irresistible. To those who mourn an absent dear one, its aroma comes like a soothing balm. No walk in life so gloomy, no nature so uncouth, no heart so pulseless, as not to acknowledge the sunshine of its presence.

As a perfume, the Fragrantie not only surpasses all other preparations in luxurious richness, but withstands the action of the atmosphere. The aroma is delicate, and captivates the senses. It is penetrating but not pungent, and recommends itself by an aromatic influence rather than an overwhelming odor. Constantly bestowing its sweetness, it is yet inexhaustible, and generously imparts its perfume for years.

With this celebrated article as a helper, no young lady or gentleman need pine in single blessedness. With its help they can win the unchanging affection of whom they please, and marry happily and speedily if so desired. Full and explicit directions for use will accompany each bottle. This article is well worth the price as a perfume alone.

Price (in American currency) $1.50 per bottle, including postage within the States.

A bottle will be mailed to any address, securely packed from observation, postpaid, on receipt of price. Address

MRS. SARAH B. LAMBERT,

Greenpoint, Kings Co., N. Y.