FOREWORD

With earnest consideration of the prevalent attitudes within the student body of the Texas College of Arts and Industries, the Staff has attempted to present something noteworthy and in some degree to observe the bounds and restrictions etched into the procedure by human tendencies, precedence, and by all other factors the integral of which gives the final result of keeping the practices well within the narrow path, worn out by previous endeavors. If it can be shown that we have broken any precedence and departed at any point from this path, we are justly proud; if we have kept within this narrow course, we ask that you bear with us in our effort.

ANNIVERSARY

DEDICATION

In commemoration of the tenth birthday of the Texas College of Arts and Industries and the closing of a decade of struggles and hardships so dominant in the life of any young institution, the Tenth Anniversary Edition of El Rancho is respectfully dedicated to our school. May she prosper and grow; keeping her place among the institutions of higher learning, serving her area of the State with unerring fidelity, and always remaining fixed in the path of principles upon which she was charted by her founders.

The image features a minimalist, abstract design. A large, dark gray circle is positioned in the upper right quadrant, containing the word "CAMPUS" in a light gray, serif font. Below this circle, a series of light gray, blocky, stacked shapes form a vertical column, resembling a stylized tower or a stack of books. The background is a light beige color, accented by several vertical bars of varying heights and widths in shades of gray. A prominent dark gray vertical bar runs along the right edge of the composition. The overall aesthetic is clean and modern, with a focus on geometric forms and a limited color palette.

The President's Message

GREETINGS:

The four years of college life stand out in the picture gallery of one's memory like a jewel setting in a beautiful ring. Of the things acquired: skills, knowledge, habits, and attitudes, the most valuable are the feelings we build within the intimate circle of our close friends and schoolmates. The students of A. and I. are to be commended for their choice of our South Texas campus where lasting friendships are builded to become an enduring joy and a precious asset.

This yearbook, so well compiled and edited by its student staff, will furnish each one of you a genuine delight, when in later life you turn its pages, tread again the paths of yesteryears, and relive some of the vivid experiences of college days.

My prayer and earnest hope is that your brief stay at A. and I. may prove instrumental in crowning your goals and aspirations with worthy achievements and a full measure of service.

J. O. LOFTIN, President.

In Memoriam

EDWARD WYNN SEALE

He was a friend. So he was rich in the things of this world. In his presence sadness vanished into joy, darkness into light, suspicion into trust, defeat into hope.

He was a tireless worker for a good cause. His hours were long, his tasks numerous and difficult. It was never too late or too early for him to serve his college or to help his students. And achievement rewarded his labors.

He was a man of vision. He pictured our college as the center of culture and refinement, the instigator of idealism and moral power, a distributing center for information.

His vision is daily being realized. May we emulate his spirit of fellowship, brotherhood, and service, and thus by honoring his memory, bring about a more perfect realization of his dream.

DR. ROBERT BARTOW COUSINS

Too big to live with littleness or meanness, too strong to be interested in a work that had no soul, Dr. Robert Bartow Cousins spent his life in the service of his God — a teacher of the children of men.

In his death March 3, 1932, our institution lost her first president, Texas one of her strongest citizens, the cause of justice one of its greatest champions, and the forces of evil one of their most relentless foes.

Kind, gentle, faithful, true with a magnanimity of spirit and a great heart of love, he was exacting with himself, charitable toward the weaknesses of others, tireless in the performance of his duty — a great scholar, a great friend, a great gentleman. He left to those who carry on in Texas College of Arts and Industries the torch of his trust and the measure of his hope — a glorious heritage.

AMOS HASTINGS ENGLE

He sang easily, beautifully and generously. He gave seven years of service to our College as head of the music department, keeping his art high and his service democratic. Thousands of students mourned his passing in 1931, grieving that never again could they follow him in "I Dreamt I Dwelt In Marble Halls", or hear him sing "On the Road To Mandalay", or "Duna".

He left to the college: The Engle Cup Tennis Singles, the Christmas Vespers, the South Texas Music Meet, and the memory of a good courageous life bravely and happily lived. He loved people, the college, and music. How reluctantly he gave up his happy service, and how reluctantly his thousands of friends gave up his laughter and his song.

A WORD FROM "BUD"

The 1934 Javelina eleven was the fourth straight team to go through undefeated and untied excepting games with Southwest Conference opponents.

The highlight of the season was the contest with Texas A. & M. at College Station. Here the Javelinas held a 14-7 lead until the last three minutes of play when the Aggies launched a passing attack to tie the game. The entire team had played inspired ball and were rewarded by being the first team in the history of A. & I. to tie a Southwest Conference opponent.

This was Barnes' last game against a Southwest Conference team, and although, as autopsy revealed, he was in no condition to play, he tackled and punted better than ever before. With a large tumor to handicap him, he played probably the best game of his career.

Barnes, Captain Holden, Captain Dixon, Hutchison, and Frazier have played their last year and will be greatly missed next fall when the Javelinas go into the toughest schedule ever arranged for them.

In basketball the Javelinas had their most disastrous year. Losing Captain Dixon at mid-year, they failed to register another win. It is doubtful that A. & I. will ever have a basketball player superior to Dixon. Captain Frazier and Porter will be very hard to replace. However, with a great array of freshman material, prospects for next year look good.

A. Y. McCALLUM.

September 22

The Javelinas came forth in the opener with a very slow start. Pitted against a well trained and fast team, the Hogs barely eked out a victory. The wet field and pigskin made most of the plays look like a free for all. Ramey's conversion for extra point brought off the scalp of the opponents.

September 29

Battling like no Javelina team had ever battled before, the inspired and fighting Hogs pressed the Aggies for four hard quarters to emerge with a 14-14 tie. Led by McCormick and Massey in the line and every man in the backfield, the Javelinas outrushed, outplayed, and roundly trounced the cocky Aggies, only to have a last-minute attack of wild passing by the Aggies rob them of a 14-7 victory.

Bud McCallum's blue-coated Javelinas tore through the ranks of the touted Rebels so furiously that the game was decided in the first few minutes of play. The Hogs scored at will with little effort and had no trouble piling up 71 points in the sixty minutes of play.

Clinching the game at the start, the high riding Javelinas soared higher to give the Soldiers a thorough thrashing. Three of the star men were out of the Javelina line-up from injuries, but they were not missed at all, since the Hogs far outclassed their opposition.

Playing the first game under the home lights the Hogs drew blood from the bloodthirsty Lobos to a 19-0 count. The Javelinas started off early with a rush and at all times were masters of the field. So perfectly did the McCallum charges click that the first and second strings were alternated throughout the game.

Crippled by the loss of Barnes, McMillan, and McCormick as well as the injuries of the line-bucking Ramey, the Javelinas went down fighting before the powerful Rice Owl eleven. At no time were the Hogs able to show the drive and teamwork that had characterized their play in previous games.

Playing a determined game, the Javelinas took the powerful Hill Billy eleven under cover to a neat count. The Billies were primed to avenge the several defeats at the hands of the Hogs, and showed some great fight and speed centered around the fleet Jack Snodgrass, but were never able to equal the performance of the Hogs.

DEDICATED TO OUR FALLEN COMRADE

ALLEN BARNES

Fighting for every gain, giving all he had in every play, and grimly, yet firmly, facing every upset, Barnes set an enviable example of courage and sportsmanship both on the football field and in his daily contacts with his fellow men. Always cognizant of his faults and never boastful of his sterling qualities and abilities, he forced his way into the hearts of his associates with a bond which time can not sever. How unwillingly we denied ourselves of his presence and how sorrowfully we gaze upon his place never again to be occupied by the one we loved and cherished as "Teddy Bear". With the presence of his spirit and our recall of his indomitable will, we shall carry on as Barnes would do if he were here.

THE JAVELINAS.

IN MEMORIAM

LAWRENCE THOMAS ALLEN

Everyone at A. & I. called him "Chesty". You couldn't help but like and respect him, and if you really knew him — you loved him. "Chesty" was like that. He was magnificently built, and remarkably handsome. You could tell how intelligent and clean and fine he was when you looked in his eyes. And the rare good humour which so definitely typified his personality was always playing in little wrinkles about the corners of his mouth. It seemed as if that fellow didn't know when to quit grinning.

He played five years of football with the Javelinas, and if you want to hear about courage and a guy who could "take it", as well as "dish it out", just ask one of his teammates or his coach about "Chesty". On the night he graduated a lot of people wondered what in the world the school would be like without him. People miss that kind of a fellow. And he was missed!

At Kelly field they wrote him down as Lawrence Allen. Of course the "Lawrence" didn't go with the other cadets. They called him "Chesty", just as everyone else had always done. Learning to fly a plan furnished an outlet for the love of adventure which was always fanning to flame in Chesty's heart. The risk of the thing was his challenge, his pleasure. He never turned down a dare when it called for nerve!

On the twenty-fourth of April, searchers from the sky found Lawrence Allen in the wreckage of the plane whose wings had failed him. There is something heroic, something splendid about "Chesty's" falling that way — through the night. He himself would not have chosen a better way to go. It was entirely fitting. It was a brave man's death. And in that wild spin earthward — with the wind screaming through the struts — and all the world turning dizzily—we can't help but suggest it—we know they were there—the wrinkles playing about the corners of Chesty's mouth.

Unconquerable — even in death.

BASKETBALL SEASON

Starting the season with only three returning lettermen, the Javelinas found it rather hard to break in the winning column, dropping the first six games to Southwest Conference teams. Rice handed the Hogs the first two defeats by the decisive scores of 62-31 and 47-21. A. & M. followed and soundly trounced the Javelinas by the margins of 51-15 and 37-25. The New Year found the team in Austin for two games with the University of Texas quintet. In the first game the Hogs came out on the losing end of a score of 47-20. The second fray was much closer with the Javelinas playing an inspired game and holding the Longhorn five to a score of 33-23.

On January 3 the Hogs won their first victory of the season over a traditional rival, the S. W. T. S. T. C. Bobcats. At the end of the first half the Bobcats led by seven points, but a sudden burst of action sent the Javelina team to their first win by a nice margin of 30-23.

The next series of games found the Javelinas facing the strong Circulo Club basketeers of Monterrey. This group played a very spectacular game, new to most of the Hog men. The rough tactics of the Mexican team handed the locals a defeat of 27-24 in their first game, but the other two were clearly Javelina victories, 40-21 and 37-26.

Journeying to Kerrville the A. & I. quintet split a two game series with Schreiner, winning the first game 37-34 in a close encounter that was not determined until the final whistle. The Mountaineers came back strong in the second game and piled up an early lead that led them to a 33-29 victory. These two games terminated the athletic career of one of the greatest athletes in the history of the school, and the captain of the Javelina team, John Mark Dixon. His leadership was definitely missing in the remaining games.

In Alpine the Hogs dropped a two-game series to the Sul Ross Lobos. The team played hard under the leadership of Captain Glenn Frazier, but the altitude and precision-like Lobos took the long end of the count by scores of 44-36 and 50-32.

Coming back home the Javelinas suffered two more defeats, this time at the hands of the Stephen F. Austin Lumberjacks. The visitors displayed excellent teamwork to carry the Hogs under for two decisive scores, 24-15 and 67-25.

Schreiner in the return series took the home team by scores of 24-23 and 26-24. Both games were close and spectacular with the lead constantly changing hands until time determined the victor.

The outstanding player for the Javelinas was their captain, John Mark Dixon. With Dixon taking the rebounds and McNabb and McMillan breaking down the court at a furious rate, the Hogs counted many points. Frazier took over the duties of captain at mid-season and proved to be a true leader, one with whom the boys enjoyed playing. His presence will be sorely missed in the line-up next year. Doty, Lawrence, Elkfns, Stovall, Glass, and Porter made up the remainder of the team.

With Dixon, Frazier, Glass, and Porter out by graduation, the Javelinas will have seven lettermen back next season, and should have one of the best teams in their history. With replacements coming up from the Freshman ranks, A. & I. will doubtless display her prowess on the court as she has on the gridiron.

TENNIS

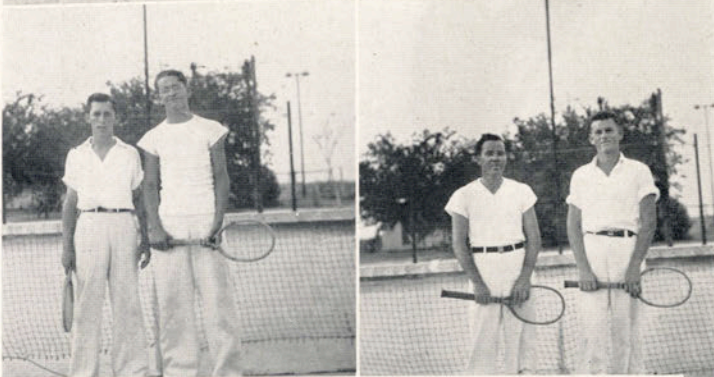

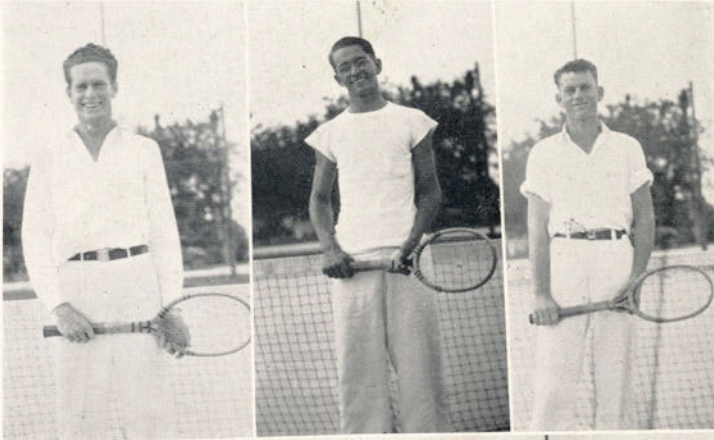

The A. & I. tennis squad had back from last year's letter-men Stephenson and Baker. Added to this line-up were Ivy Lee Doty from Edinburg Junior College and Bramlette and Thomas from last year's freshman team.

Under the leadership of Coach Straiton the team defeated the Corpus Christi Independents in the fall matches four to two.

Doty won the Corpus Christi invitation tournament in October, while he and Thomas took the doubles match.

Doty repeated with a victory in the Valley Clay Court Tournament on March 16 at McAllen.

Coming back in March, the Javelina racqueteers administered a second defeat to the Corpus Christi Independents when Doty defeated Becket one set 7-5, Thomas defeated Whiteheart 8-6, Doty and Thomas defeated Becket and Whiteheart 2-6, 6-2, 7-5.

TENNIS

Following up its victories in the early spring the Javelinas lost a tournament with Edinburg two matches to three.

On April 14 the squad journeyed to Kerrville to tangle with Schreiner, resulting in a tie, three all.

The Hogs defeated Victoria Independents April 14 eight matches to one.

Matches to be played when going to press:

April 18—Southwestern at Georgetown.

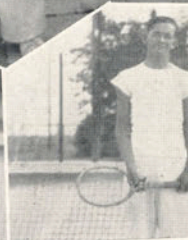

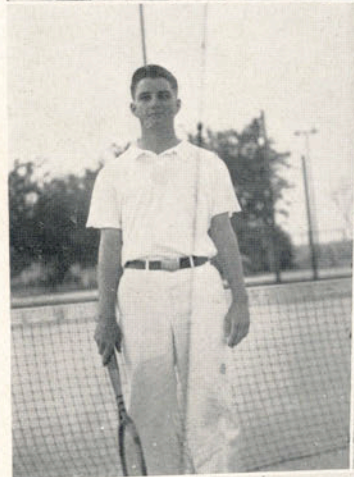

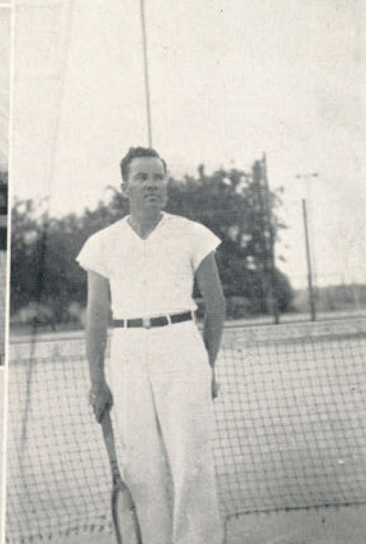

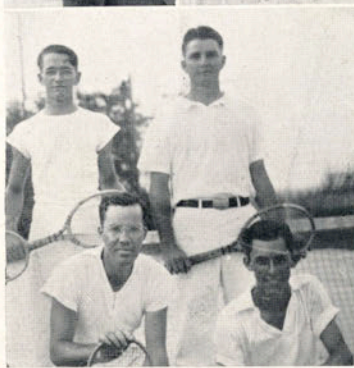

April 19—Victoria Independents at Victoria.

April 24—Edinburg College at Edinburg.

April 25—Brownsville Junior College at Brownsville.

April 27—Club Deportivo at Monterrey, Mexico.

The Fish players defeated all opposition, winning over Hebronville, Corpus Christi, Bishop, and Falfurrias. The line-up includes: Archer Clark, Elliott Ross, Sam Susser, and Robert Hammitt.

THE TUSK RENDS

A minister in a certain town advertised for a manservant. The next morning Taylor Nelson knocked at the door.

"Can you start a fire and get breakfast by seven o'clock?" asked the minister.

"Well, I guess so," answered Taylor.

"Well, can you polish all the silver, wash the dishes, and keep the house neat and tidy?"

"Say, Preacher," exploded Taylor, "I came here to make arrangements to get married, but if it's going to be like that, you can count me out right now!"

Visitor to prison: "And, my man, what is your name?"

"Bruno" Parrish: "17,000".

Visitor: "But, is that your real name?"

"Bruno": "No, just my pen-name."

Mr. Bass: (After conducting a freshman physics class for forty-five minutes, and explaining some of the marvels of modern-day science): "And now, young men and women, you see nothing is impossible!"

William Francis: "It isn't? Well, I'd like to see you stick an umbrella down your throat and open it."

Mr. Manning: "What happens to property when it is not disposed of by will?"

"Pansy" Dietz: "It is divided among the errors."

Mr. Riley: "Where is Mr. Scanland, Herbert?"

Herbie Schulze: "He's in the studio playing a duet; I finished first."

Mrs. Jester: "Ross, give three collective nouns."

Parsons: "Fly-paper, waste-basket, and vacuum cleaner."

Four-year-old Sam Susser went for a walk in the cemetery with his aunt. Passing one of the graves, he noticed an iron cross at the head. "Why does this grave have this cross?" asked Sam.

"A soldier lies buried here," replied his aunt. "He fought for his country."

Sam looked at the grave again and remarked, "Did he get it?"

"Dearest," cooed Ethel Eve, "couldn't you learn to love me?"

"I might," bashfully answered Rosebud, "I learned to eat spinach."

The butcher was rather surprised when Margaret Yancey entered the butcher shop and asked for twenty-five pounds of beef. Nevertheless, he cut off the joint and put it on the scales.

"Will you take it with you, or shall I send it to your house?" he asked.

"Oh", she murmured, blushing prettily, "I don't want to buy it. You see, the doctor told me that I had lost twenty-five pounds, and I wanted to see what it looked like in a lump."

Old Maid: "Has the canary had its bath yet?"

Servant: "Yes, ma'am. You can come in now."

Back in the dear days half beyond recall, Bull Brown once lived on a farm in Arkansas. Among other things that he did, he occasionally went to school. One day the State Health Doctor was examining the children to check up on their weights. He found little Harold to be an underweight.

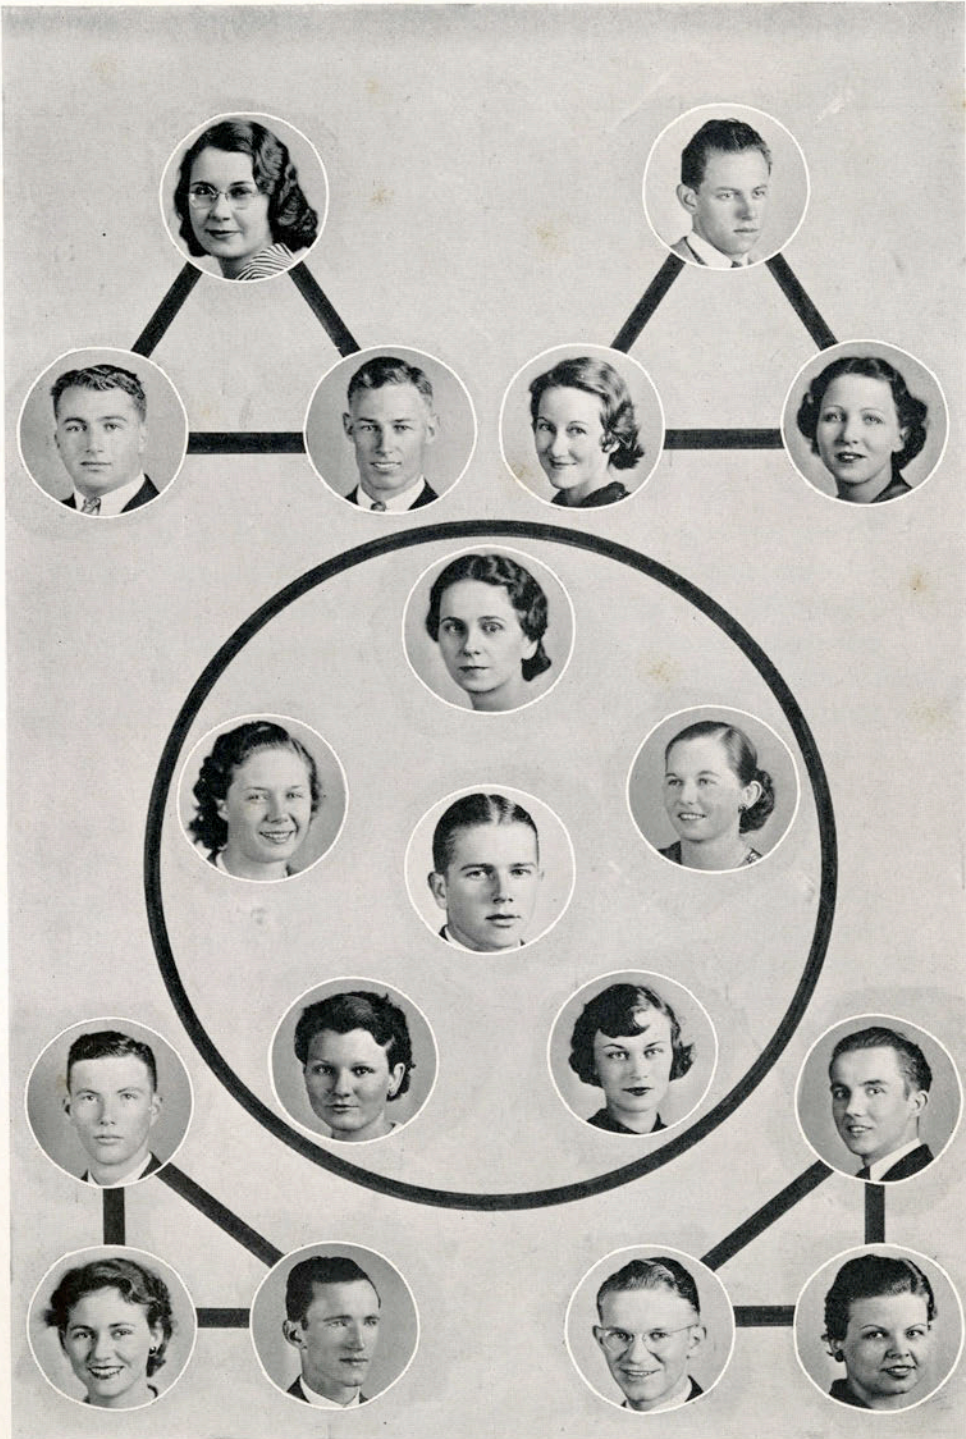

"You don't drink milk?"

"Nope," answered Harold.

"Live on the farm and don't drink milk at all?"

"Nope, we ain't hardly got enough for the hawgs."

Dan Cupid Draws Some Strange Figures

10 Years of Mutual Progress

Through coincidence, the tenth anniversary of Texas College of Arts and Industries comes at the same time as does Central Power and Light Company's tenth anniversary under its present ownership There is more than one parallel between these two institutions serving South Texas. Not only are both organized for public service and working primarily to raise the standard of living in this area, but both Texas A. & I. and C. P. & L. have made rapid expansion of activities and have met with a considerable degree of success. A. & I. has rapidly enlarged its student body and sent hundreds of trained young men and women to leaven the whole population with enlightenment. Meanwhile, C. P. & L. has greatly improved its service and cut its rates in half, while providing facilities for an ever-growing population and for future needs. Truly, these have been ten years of mutual progress.

LAUGH THIS OFF

In view of this growth of war sentiment Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler of the Carnegie Endowment for Universal Peace, has chosen a timely moment to bring forward a solemn warning against those who plot war, as well as an exhibit of how directly the loss, the suffering and the distress which nations are now enduring are the effect of the World War.

Dr. Butler shows that according to the best statistics obtainable the World War cost 30,000,000 lives and $400,000,000,000 in property. If that four hundred billions had been put to constructive use it would have built a $2,500 house and furnished this house with $1,000 worth of furniture, and placed it on five acres of land worth $100 an acre and given all this to each and every family in the United States, Canada, Australia, England, Wales, Ireland, Scotland, France, Belgium, Germany and Russia.

After doing this there would have been enough money left to give to each city of 20,000 inhabitants and over in all the countries named a $5,000,000 library and a $10,000,000 university.

And then out of the balance we would have still sufficient money to set aside a sum at 5 per cent interest which would pay for all time to come a $1,000 yearly salary each for an army of 125,000 teachers, and in addition to this pay the same salary to each of an army of 125,000 nurses.

And after having done all this, we could still have enough left out of our $400,000,000,000 to buy up all of France and Belgium, and everything of value that France and Belgium possess; that is, every French and Belgian farm, home, factory, church, railroad, street car—in fact, everything of value in those two countries in 1914.

Dr. Butler regrets that these figures even do not tell the whole story. He says they take no account of the stupendous addition to these losses which have been and are the result of the economic international war which is raging today with great violence. Unless the world's leadership and the world's statesmanship can bring that economic war to a quick end, it must result and can only result in happenings which in effect constitute both national and international economic suicide.—Akron, O., Beacon-Journal.

THE TUSK CUTS

A well-known artist once visited the college and happened to walk through the art department, examining the exhibits there. The art students were proudly showing their masterpieces when finally, he came upon Maurine Yarborough working upon the likeness of a fish. Stopping to watch her, the artist remarked "What kind of a fish is this supposed to be?"

"A shark, sir," answered Maurine.

"But have you ever seen a shark?"

"No sir, I never did."

"Then how can you expect to properly represent this specie if you have never seen one?"

"Well, some of the great artists have painted pictures of angels, haven't they?"

"And you, Miles," said Mrs. Wise at the table. "Will you have pie or cake?"

"Pie," said little Miles Cogley promptly.

"Pie, what?" broke in Mr. Wise sharply to teach his son manners.

"Pie first," bashfully admitted Miles.

Ikey: "Oy, Oy, I'm dying. Send for the priest quick."

Abie: "Vat, Ikey, you don't vant a priest; you vant a rabbi."

Ikey: "I vould give the rabbi smallpox — send for the priest."

Liza: "Young man, ah wants a pair of shoes foh mah little gal."

Franklin Sherman (Clerk): "What kind, black kid?"

Liza: "You all jes min' yo' own business an' git me dem shoes."

Two backwoodsmen knocked on the door of Andy Edward's house.

"Hello, Andy," said one as the door opened. "Say, we came across the body of a man over there in the hollow and we kinda thought it was you."

"That so?" replied Andy. "What did he look like?"

"Well, he was about your build—"

"Have on a flannel shirt?"

"Yep."

"Was they knee or hip boots?"

"Let's see. Which was they, Kellogg? Oh, yes, they was hip boots."

"Nope," said Andy, closing the door. "It wasn't me."

One day Mr. Fraser, a great golfer, heard some caddies arguing out near the club house. Walking over to the scene, he observed two small boys playing marbles. The younger boy was using some very abusive language.

"Don't you know what happens to little boys who say words like that when they are playing marbles?" asked Mr. Fraser.

"Sure, they grow up and play golf," answered the youngster.

"You are charged with being intoxicated," said the judge to the young man before him. "What is your name?"

"My name is Angus Macpherson McRoberts," replied the youth.

"And who bought you the whiskey?" asked the judge.

Elizabeth Sorenson (bored): "What shall we do this evening?"

Johnny McNabb: "Let's think hard—"

Elizabeth: "No, let's do something you can do too".

THE TUSK TEARS

Bud McCallum: "J. B., what would you do if the ball was near the goal line and it was fourth down and a yard to go?"

J. B. Parr: "I would slide down the bench some more so that I could see better."

Hagler: "What's in your pocket?"

Starkey: "Dynamite. I'm waiting for Boyd Ladd. Every time he sees me, he hits me on the chest and breaks my pipe. Next time he does it, he'll blow his hand off."

A man last fall brought his son to this institution to be entered as a freshman. He wanted the boy to take a course shorter than customary ones. Not being able to get the kind of arrangements to suit him from the dean or the various committees, he finally went in to see the president.

"My son can never take all of those studies," he said. "He wants to get through more quickly. Can't you arrange it for him?"

"Oh, yes," answered Mr. Loftin. "He can take a short course if he likes. It all depends on what you want to make out of him. When God wants to make an oak, he takes a hundred years; but he takes only two months to make a squash."

Dr. Francis: "Bill, what is your conception of home?"

Bill Barnard: "Home is the place where part of the family waits until the others are through with the car."

Barber: "How do you want your hair cut, Sonny?"

Little Stevens: "Like Granddaddy May's; with a hole in the top."

Mrs. Dickens: "Charles, I noticed the other day that you got up and gave an elderly lady your seat on the bus."

Cumberland: "Yes, ever since childhood I have respected a woman with a strap in her hand."

Mr. Cook: "Here, son, don't you know it's wrong to hit a boy when you have him down?"

Little Cookie: "Aw, g'way! What do you think I got him down for?"

Dr. Egner (stopping in East Texas and seeing a negro plowing a mule out near the road): "Doesn't that mule ever kick you?"

Uncle Josh: "No, sah, he ain't yet, but he frequently kicks the place whah I recently was."

Mr. Lanier: "How did you find the beef?"

Freshman: "Oh, I just moved a bean, and there it was."

Trustee: "Before we can engage you, you will have to take an intelligence test."

Chick Holden: "Intelligence test! Why the ad said you wanted a school-teacher."

Dr. Nierman: "Kenedy, what is the formula for water?"

Flop: "HIJKLMNO."

Dr. Nierman: "Nonsense!"

Flop: "Well, yesterday you said it was H to O."

Leonard Hall joined the army. He approached a sergeant and asked, "Sergeant, pick me out a nice gentle horse, will you?"

"Right," said the Sergeant. "Have you ever ridden before?"

"Never," confessed Hall.

"Good! Then I've got the very horse for you," smiled the veteran. "Here's one that's never been ridden before. You can both start together."

Eugenia: "Ninety-nine women out of a hundred are naturally generous."

John Lyle: "Yes, where one woman will keep a secret, ninety-nine will give it away."

Bill Norvel was moving out into the country and had asked a couple of friends to help him carry his chicken house. They found the job quite a big one, but struggled on. About the half way mark, they set the coop down to have a rest, and one of them exclaimed, "Why, where's Bill!"

"I'm all right," came Bill's voice from within the coop, "I'm carrying the perches."

THE HISTORY OF BRUNO

The world turned smoothly for Bruno until he started to college. He, prior to that time, had been at different times a gangster, athlete, window peeper, dishwasher, moon-gazer, pansy, bum, romeo, stooge, stool-pigeon, and a few other trivial things; but never degraded himself to any great extent, because of that natural and innate pride which had been instilled into his young soul by his friends.

Bruno came to college; that is understood. His coming was heralded by the usual turnout of the band (of alley-rats). But his coming to college was not his downfall. In fact, when he first came, he began to rise like the moon over the strange horizon. Slowly he worked his way into the hearts (and pockets) of his associates. Still, this was not his downfall. Sadly he confesses that his first step downward was in opening a career of smoking. Sticky Strikes overwhelmed him by their aroma. Like a fiend he took up the vicious habit. Slowly the ravenous recreation ate into his system; he could not give up. His pride would not allow that. Fighting nobly he vowed he would overcome the beast which was tearing at the gates of his very soul. Like all flesh, his efforts became more and more weak. Finally, he gave up hope and succumbed to the effects of the tobacco loving addict. Had he but stopped at this, his story would not be veiled in black crepe today. He had started his decline and he knew it. Still fighting he was determined that he would yet check his fall. The public acknowledges this and admires him for his determination. However, the landslide had started and Fate alone could intervene; sad to state, Fate was at this moment asleep and did not come to his assistance. Tearfully, he cried out for the help which was not to be had. In vain he tore his hair and scratched his ears, but to no avail.

Perhaps, Fate would not have been so unkind to Bruno had he not got in the wrong crowd. This bunch inflated his vanity and contributed further to his downfall. He tried hard to hide his shame by the development of a racuous laugh, yet under it all an observer could see the wreck of a being who never had a chance. The landslide had commenced, and he could only follow its tide. His associates soon added the lowest point to his degradation; he was elected editor of one of the college publications. Brazenly he plied the arts of a journalist, doing his utmost to forget the time when he had respect. The fan mail he was soon to receive bolstered his spirits so that he could not think of his past. Several anonymous letters were received about dogs and trains and the like. After editing the scandal sheet for a while, Bruno again jumped off a precipice. This time he became a murderer and a kidnaper; he murdered an innocent baby kitten, and kidnapped a box of cookies out of his mother's ice box. With this the tale ends; so sadly we look back on the life of this unfortunate being. His trial has not yet closed, but prediction leads to the conclusion that he is guilty and will get the life sentence of making a living for some girl. May his example be a lesson to the freshmen boys.

How they work on the Aggie Farm

“Why, yes, Pete, I’d love to go. What time?”

THE TUSK TEARS

While teaching in the grade school, Ethel Cook assigned the class an essay to be written, and the children were to choose their own subjects.

A little girl gave in the following paper:

"My subject is 'Ants'. Ants is of two kinds, insecs and lady uncles.

Sometimes they live in holes and sometimes they crawl into sugar boles, and sometimes they live with their married sisters."

Oliver Berry was talking one time with an Englishman who happened to be visiting in this country. They were discussing the customs of the two countries when the subject of telephones was mentioned. Whereupon the Englishman spoke:

"With all due deference, my boy, I really think our English custom at the telephone is better than saying 'Hello' as you do."

"What do you say in England?" asked Oliver.

"We say 'Are you there?', then, of course, if you are not there, there is no use in going on with the conversation."

Billy Townsend's father thought that it would be a good idea for him to spend a vacation on the farm, so he arranged for little Billy to work through the summer months. One morning he was awakened at four o'clock by the farmer, who announced that they were going to cut the oats.

"Are they wild oats," asked Bill.

"No, why," replied the farmer.

"Then why do you have to slip up on them in the dark?"

Mrs. Cook: "What did your father say when you told him you smashed the radiator on his car?"

James: "Shall I leave out the cuss-words?"

Mrs. C.: "Certainly."

James: "He didn't say a thing."

Barber: "What will it be, Splawn, a haircut or just a change of oil?"

Billy Bogel: "You would never think that my car was bought second hand, would you?"

Mary Grace: "No, I thought you made it yourself."

Pop May (noticing George Simons' sleepy appearance): "I suppose you were out last night holding the hand of a sick friend!"

George: "I wish I had been holding his hand; I'd made some money."

Lawyer: "Now, Rastus, you want me to defend you; how much money have you?"

Rastus: "I ain't got no money, but I got a 1922 cah."

Lawyer: "You can raise some money on that; what did they accuse you of stealing?"

Rastus: "A 1922 cah."

A fellow has to be a contortionist these days to get by. First he has to keep his back to the wall and his ear to the ground. Then he must put his shoulder to the wheel, his nose to the grindstone, keep a level head and have both feet on the ground.

Mr. Bramlette: "Did you have the car out last night, James?"

James: "Yes, I took some of the boys for a little ride."

Mr. B.: "Well, tell the boys I found two of their lipsticks."

A nervous man walked into a grocery store in a Louisiana town and asked for all the rotten eggs the grocer had.

"What do you want with all the stale eggs?" asked the clerk. "Are you going to hear Huey Long tonight?"

"Sh - h - h," whispered the buyer. "I'm Long."

Mr. McCulley: "Did you fish with flies?"

Mr. Riley: "Fish with them! We fished with them, ate with them, camped with them, and slept with them!"

My brother and I are twins. We look so much alike nobody can tell us apart. When we went to school my brother threw an eraser and hit the teacher. The teacher spanked me. She didn't know the difference, but I did. A cop caught my brother speeding, and the judge fined me. He didn't know the difference but I did. I was going to get married, but my brother got to the church first and married my girl. She didn't know the difference, but I did.

But I got even with him for all that. Know what I did? I died, and they buried him.

John Homer (over the telephone): "Can I get a box for two?"

Puzzled Voice: "Sorry, but we don't have boxes for two."

J. H.: "Isn't this the theatre?"

Puzzled Voice: "No, you are talking to the undertaker."

Hugh Porter, Jr. (appearing at dance): "Is this a respectable place?"

Doorman: "Yes, but come on in anyhow."

THE MORNING AFTER

THE TUSK GORES

Mr. Lanier: "The bank has returned your check."

Jenny Rhodes: "Goody, what will we buy this time!"

Cinderella: "Godmother, must I leave the dance at twelve?"

The Good Fairy: "You'll not go at all, if you don't stop swearing."

Delta Theta: "I told his sister that we were going to be married next summer."

Alph Sigma: "July?"

Delta Theta: "No, we really are!"

Mother (after relating a pathetic story): "Now Reggie, wouldn't you like to give your bunny to that poor little boy who hasn't any father?"

Reggie: "Couldn't we give him father instead?"

Sotto: "How far is it from your girl's house over here?"

Blotto: "Depends on how big a hurry you are in."

Old Farmer Scooge wasn't stingy. He was merely economical in the management of his big farm and all his hired hands. One morning while repairing the curb to his underground cistern, he unexpectedly fell in, pulling the rope with him. Having always been a good swimmer, he had no trouble in keeping afloat; but the water was cold and he couldn't climb out. His wife was helpless alone, and without a rope.

"John!" she yelled excitedly down to him, "I'll ring the dinner bell so's the boys can come in and pull you out."

"What time is it?" he yelled.

"Bout eleven o'clock."

"No, dang it, let 'em work on till dinner time. I'll just swim around till they come."

"Mandy," said that dusky woman's mistress, "I've heard about your misfortune, and I'm terribly sorry."

"Deed, Ma'am, Ah ain't had no misfortune."

"But your husband was killed in an accident yesterday, wasn't he?"

"Yas'm, but dats his hahd luck, not mine."

John Paul Nolley: "Do you think the radio will ever replace the newspapers?"

Boode Davisson: "Of course not! Who ever heard of wrapping a herring in a radio."

"What is an optimist, father?"

"An optimist is one who goes into a hotel to cash a check and who leaves his baggage outside."

"I see Roseblatt had a fire last night."

"Vell, he is a good fellow; he deserves it."

Tramp: "Could you give a poor fellow a bite?"

Housewife: "I don't bite, but I'll call my dog."

President Loftin: "How many boys are working under you?"

Mr. Emerson: "I do not know: I have never seen more than half of them at it."

The pompous judge glared sternly over his spectacles at the tattered prisoner who had just been dragged before the bar of justice on a charge of vagrancy.

"Have you ever earned a dollar in your life?" he asked.

"Yes, your honor," was the response. "I voted for you in the last election."

MASTERS OF THEIR CRAFT

The most famous sword maker of the 16th century was Andrew Ferrara, an Italian. Hammering every part of the blade from steel of his own manufacture . . . his swords exist today as masterpieces of his art.

When a man makes a product of the finest quality, it is with pardonable pride that he places his name upon it. The maker's imprint, accompanied by traditions of skill and high standards of honest dealings, becomes the customer's guarantee of highest quality and satisfaction.

Emulating the old masters of sword making, Southwestern craftsmen put their finest work into every engraving bearing the SWECO imprint. It is your guarantee of painstaking care . . . of a superior printing plate.

We are proud to proclaim that the engravings in this volume were made by Southwestern craftsmen.
