Lupita Villarreal spies a letter in her mailbox.

Hayden Harris strolls down the wing with a little help from his friends.

August 25, 1982

"It was so exciting finding a letter in my mailbox my first day here! Registration was held in the library and went much smoother than I had first anticipated. I've met my adviser and my schedule looks like it will work out fairly well with Tuesday my longest day due to my 2:30 lab. The school newspaper (South Texan) put out a special registration edition (describing campus organizations, departments and upcoming activities) that I read through twice. I sure hope my classes aren't too difficult 'cause it looks as if there is a lot going on at this university that I want to find out all about."

"Dorm life so far is great. People are always goofing off or watching the soaps in the lounge. In fact, my favorite is about to start and I need to grab a chair before they're all taken. I'll be back to this later . . . "

Gracie Aleman and Colette Dames intently watch Erica's latest escapades on "All My Children."

When all else fails-go to the bookstore-you might find Tommie Lopez, Diane Johnson and Carlos Ybarra there too.

"This afternoon I discovered the bookstore. They have everything! It's like a small general store. I bought my books, pens and pencils, special equipment for drawing class, a new t-shirt with an A&I logo, a book bag, anyway, I spent quite a bit of money (only on necessities Dad) and if you could send some more it would be fantastic."

"After dumping my books off at the dorm I went back to the Student Union Building (nicknamed the SUB) to check out the gameroom. There are several video games that I want to learn to play, as well as pool and ping-pong tables. I've seen posters up all over campus about a dance tonight at the Pub (inside the SUB) and can't wait to go and meet all the people that will be there. Classes start tomorrow so I'll let you know more about what's going on later . . . "

James Jefferson studies Herman Anderson's "Defender" technique.

Lining up a perfect shot, David Alizadeh missed when the camera flashed blurring his vision.

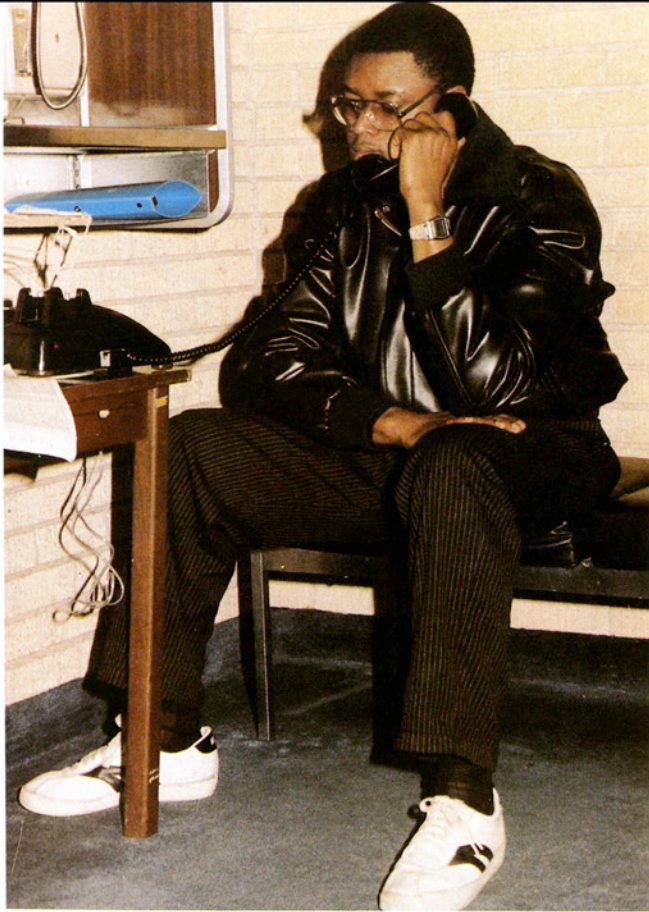

"Enjoy your chicken," says Mandy Salinas as she hands Colette Dames her lunch.

"It's all in where you hang the posters," Cornel Cunningham tells his co-worker Powell Fancher. Both students work in the Student Activities Office.

Working out their semester carpool schedules are commuters George Misiong, Bill Barnes and Barbara Bryan.

Tayo Mebude makes the semesterly call home for money.

Through rain, sleet and snow the mail from home continues to pass from postmistress Yolanda Rodriguez's hands to campus boxes.

"Rappin" is where it's at for KTAI's DeJuan Oakes, Linda Mosher and Ron Cervantes.

"Since I had plenty of time between classes, I walked over to the campus post office to ask about mail services. They told me that a U.S. mail truck delivers and picks up mail everyday and that after sorting through it all, it's taken to the different dorms.

"This didn't explain my empty mail box!"

"When I went back to the dorm to get books for my next class, I heard my roommate's radio on a campus station. They call it KTAI and the disc jockeys are A&I students. It's a pretty good station. They have news, special interviews and play all types of music-punk, country and western, rock 'n' roll and even classical. Speaking of which, there's a piano in my dorm, Mom, so I'll try and practice.

Alumni Phonathon participants Mark Wehrheim for the Lambda Chi's and Zeta's Lori Tschirhart, Debbie Thomas and Patrice Kinney make their requests for money to support the Presidential Merit Scholarships given to incoming freshmen as Carol Alexander checks out a troubled phone.

Chi Omega pledges Susan Rowden and Shelby Flanagan pose with Delt pledges Paul Baker and James Davis at their fall mixer.

Sigma Chi's Fred Leon, Dave Anderson, Susan Sales, Jack Southard, Bruce Davis, Creighton Maynard and Carol Alexander cook fajitas all the time, but tonight they're selling them for a dollar.

"There are three national sororities (Alpha Delta Pi, Chi Omega and Zeta Tau Alpha), and six national fraternities (Alpha Tau Omega, Delta Tau Delta, Lambda Chi Alpha, Kappa Sigma, Sigma Chi and Tau Kappa Epsilon). They have fall and spring rush parties when they pledge new members and they fill in the rest of the year

"There are Greeks all over campus!!"

by participating in campus and local events. Don't let all the parties and extra activities fool you Mom, most of these kids have full class and work schedules. I don't know where they find the time for all they do!

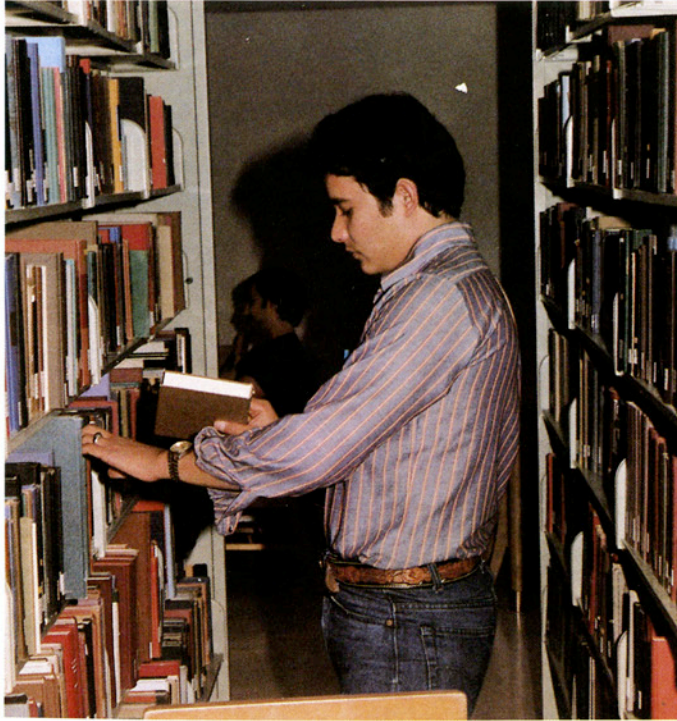

ADPi's Karrie Maxwell and Allison Taylor bum-out for their big/lil' sis Halloween party.

The ATO's dominate the fall carnival dance area when "Gloria" is played.

Library assistant Raul Soto keeps the books in order.

Secretary Cindy Foreman and student worker Wendy Allen help keep the Caesar Kleberg Wildlife Research Institute going.

"Today I went to the personnel office and applied for a campus job. There are all types of jobs for lab instructors, research and library assistants and clerical typists. There are opportunities to be tutors, resident hall advisors, and so many more . . .

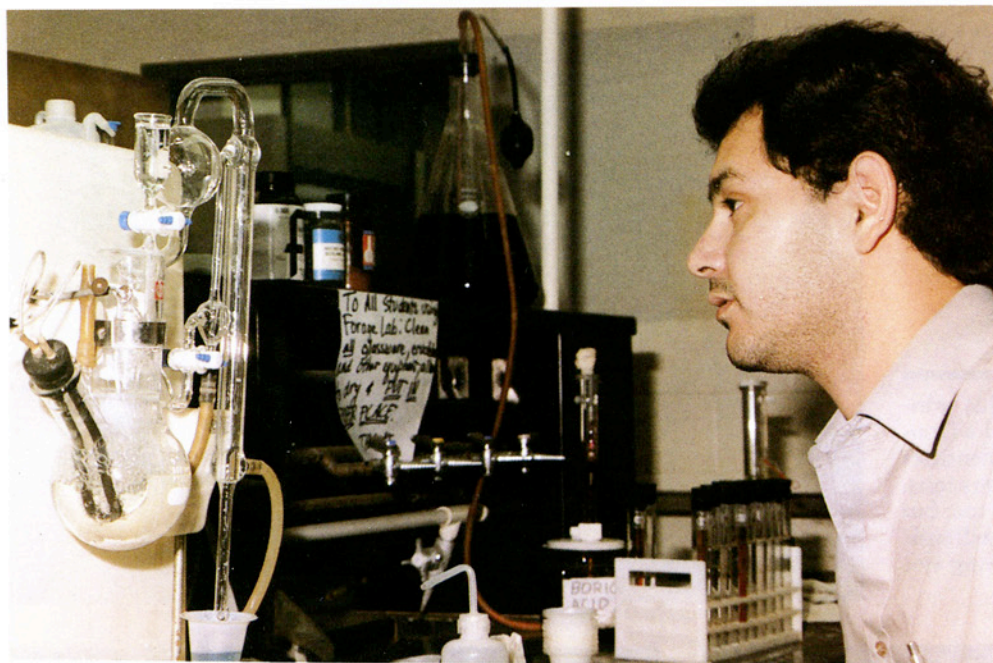

"Just think if I get a campus job . . . "

"Further investigation into the various departments showed me that there is all kinds of research work going on that my recruiter never got around to mentioning. The agricultural department (Ag) has equipment that their people learn to use, while also learning how to apply new technology in the field of growing things . . .

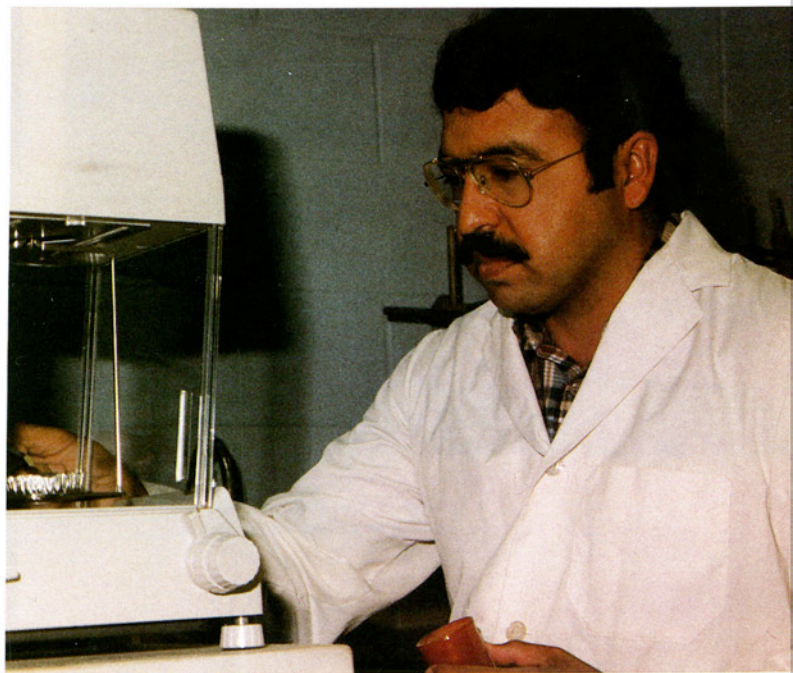

Agricultural professor Dr. Donald Nixon and Gail Newman work on Gail's semester schedule.

Mauricio Pacheco and Andy Garza demonstrate the artificial insemination of a cow.

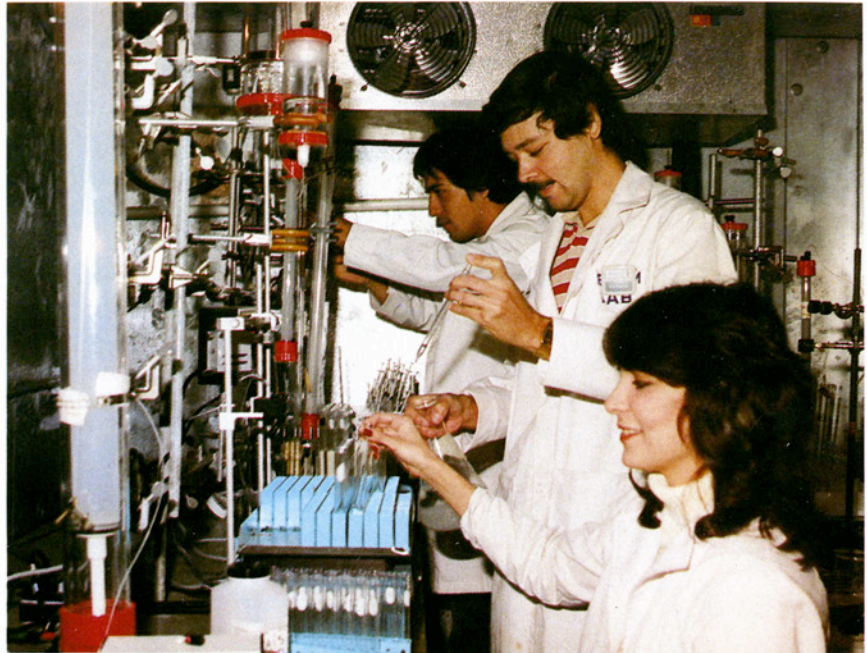

Research associate Andy Garza takes a reading from the analytical scale.

"I wasn't too thrilled about discovering snakes in the biology department until they told me that they were doing reserach on snake venom as a possible cure for cancer. I guess maybe my prejudice against snakes is unjustified, especially if their research provides a clue to help cancer victims."

"a chem prof plays

"In chemistry, they have this conglomerate of machinery called a Double Mass Spectrometer that identifies chemical compounds and forms ions. It does all sorts of other stuff too, but when he wouldn't let me play billiards I decided to check out something else ...

Working in the "cole room" are graduate students Roger Campos, Johnny Lara and Anna Briones.

One of the Biology department's snakes which is milked for its venom.

Exploring a microscopic world is Vivian E. Garcia, research associate.

Ajay Jaiswal Kumar and Jesse Gonzalez conduct a chemical oxygen-demand experiment.

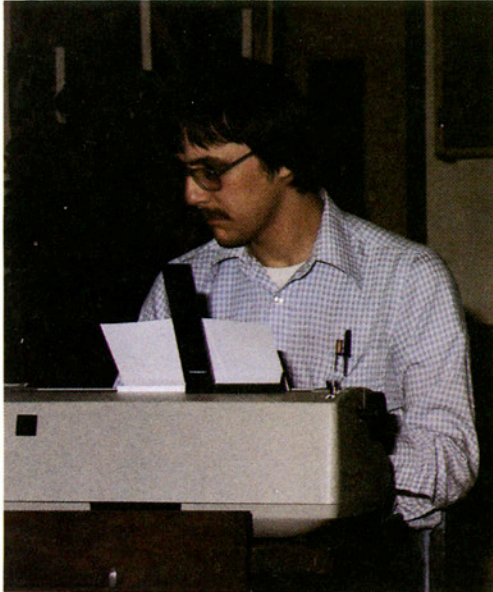

Chemistry students Juan M. Ramos and Julie Dayton determine the hardness of H₂O.

Dr. Ronald E. Marcotte, chemistry professor, works with the only Double Mass Spectrometer System in Texas.

Keri Macomb takes inventory in the Physics' department stockroom.

Graduate student David Stephenson works his way through school at the Wildlife institute.

"Good news! I got a call from the personnel office today about a campus job.

"But I must specify three job
preferences . . . "

"Anyway, I told them I would take the first available job that I qualified for and then left to investigate the art department. On the way over there, I got slightly sidetracked and wound up in some group's meeting. They sounded interesting too so I stayed there for a while. When I finally made it to the art department, I almost stumbled over my history professor! Maybe he didn't notice . . .

Michael Diaz carefully stacks silica bags in the art department.

Delma Lozano conducts a meeting of the Pi Kappa Delta Forensics Society.

Peggy Wilkes perfects the art of limestone lithography while Dr. Leslie Hunter leaves history class to become a part-time ceramics student.

The bonfire slowly dies out after beginning another year's Homecoming activities.

Students and cheerleaders feel the heat from the traditional bonfire.

The 1982 Texas A&I cheerleading squad keeps the crowd in high spirits during a time out.

"The days have gone so quickly that it's already time for Homecoming. For students, activities began with the traditional Ag sponsored bonfire at midnight Friday."

"For Ags, events climaxed when they kept the crown . . ."

"Spirits of past, present and future A&I students ran high as the Hoggies stomped the Sam Houston Bearkats in a game where K.C. Jones and Kevin Flowers joined Jimmy Rivera, David Mims, Richard Zepeda, Justin Price and Ronnie Woodard in strengthening the defense."

"With the excitement of halftime over, I focused all my attention on the game and wished I'd watched more Monday night football Dad so that I'd know what was going on down there."

1982 Homecoming Queen nominees and their escorts watch the last few seconds of the second quarter.

"The final score was

"Everyone was having a party after the game-the Greeks, the Ags, even the Alumni. I hit them all, well, except for the Alumni one, I didn't have an invitation to get me through the door ..."

Alumni Association Director Doug Vannoy, 1982 Homecoming Queen Georgina Macon and 1982 Student Association President Tom Guerra look on as the ROTC Color Guard prepares to enter the field and begin halftime activities.

University President Bill Franklin, Georgina Macon, Jane Kieschnick and 1982 Homecoming Queen Gina Gwosdz laugh as Tom Guerra and Gary Don Hopkins exchange congratulations on keeping the crown within the Ag department for the fourth year in a row.

The annual Fall Carnival was held last Thursday (Nov. 4) from 6-11 p.m. About 50 booths of games, food and music were featured with students and advisors providing the entertainment and audience.

"It seemed like everyone was there ..."

I was glad none of my teachers assigned Homework 'cause once I got there, I didn't want to leave. The Student Activities Board (formerly the Student Union Governing Board) was in charge of the event and I stayed after it was over to help them clean up. I think I'll join a club or two so that next year I can be more involved. The only problem is which clubs should I join?

Oh yea, mid term was Oct. 18 Dad, and I'm passing all my classes ...

I really missed ya'll on Parents' Day. Never thought I'd be homesick until everyone else's parents were here and mine weren't.

"Parents day just made me homesick ..."

"The day (Nov. 6) was filled with activities including a buffet luncheon, ROTC open house, Rodeo Club sponsored rodeo, horticulture display and plant sale, and performances by the Mariachi Javelina, Texas A&I Singers, the Texas A&I Marching Band and the cheerleaders.

A Texas-style barbecue sponsored by the Aggie Club preceded the football game where the Hoggies beat the East Texas State Lions 37-22.

Following registration, parents wait in line to eat at the buffet luncheon.

"It's a week full of activity for the sororities and fraternal little sister organizations that I just found out about. I only got to see the pictures (since my Greek roommate forgot to invite me to the fun), but evidently the Sigs do this every year. The week began with the Miss Derby Day Pageant, continued with a billboard

"This year's A&I vs SWT game was something else! The stands were packed with fans for both schools and excitement penetrated every field play. The Hoggies cheered their team on hoping for a 10-year undefeated streak while the Bobcats cheered for the opposite result. At halftime they led-26 to 21.

While the Southwest team tackled Hoggies on the field, Southwest fans turned juvenile and tackled our goal post. Opposite page: The stands are full with cheering students, band members and visitors.

places in the stands. The noise was deafening everytime something happened on the field. You really had to be here to believe it! As A&I continually lost the ball and SWT scored touchdowns, the divided fans accordingly responded. We were in for a disappointment when the final buzzer witnessed a 45-27 victory for the Bobcats.

"The night wasn't over though, Again, Ags and Greeks held parties and the Student Activities Board sponsored a River City dance in the Pub. What a weekend! Later . . .

Graduates sigh in relief at a concluded ceremony.

"I attended the 1982 fall graduation ceremony and wondered if I would one day be receiving my college degree."

"Texas A&I holds three such ceremonies yearly. One in May, August and December. There's not as much pomp and circumstance as there was in high school, but watching each graduate's face as they received their diploma made it clear that this ceremony was indeed very significant."

"There really isn't too much to say. One semester has successfully ended and another one (more hectic) has begun. I very much enjoy being here and couldn't imagine graduating from any other university. Must go for the moment . . ."

Recent graduates receive praise and approval on a job well done from family and friends.

“What a week! First the Miss Texas A&I Pageant and then the bed races and the dance-a-thon. Everyone thought the Kappa Sigs would win the bed race for the third year in a row, but the Sigma Chi’s beat them. It was fun watching and we even got on the 10p.m. news. Then on Saturday, I danced from noon until midnight at the dance-a-thon for Muscular Dystrophy. Boy was I tired! . . . ”

Clockwise: The Horticulture Club sells plants during Aggie Week, but the excitement is in taking yourself and your dog to the NIRA Rodeo where Texas A&I students rope calves, barrel race or just drink beer. Opposite: Rodeoing isn't just for the guys anymore, though Tom Guerra might argue the point, but he'd rather be eating barbecue so that he'd hear Dr. David Crenshaw and Gary Don Hopkins named Ag Teacher of the Year and Ag of the Year, respectively.

"With Greek Week and Aggie Week at the same time, I was lucky that I didn't have a lot of homework or any tests. This year's 54th annual Aggie Roundup, sponsored by the College of Agriculture and the Aggie Club, was filled with all sorts of excitement.

"Ags that didn't have on a bandana got thrown in a trough . . ."

SPORTS

Off-the-field Fighting Javelinas cheer for their fellow players and Kay Goodwin (14) attempts to keep the ball for the Lady Javs.

A 22-8 game record for the Lady Javelinas earned them an invitation to the NCAA Division II national playoffs, a first for Texas A&I. Besides this honor, three of the women received Lone Star Conference titles. Dawn Rapp, forward, took the field goal shooting title; Kay Goodwin, center, was sixth in scoring, and Sheryl Campbell, guard, was 10th in scoring. The team's playing record was noted as the conference's best.

Thanks!

Working on the 1983 El Rancho has been a long road with quite a few downhill turns. The decision to have a yearbook this year was a tough one for the administration to make, but in January, with one Journalism-English major's application for the job the 8½ x 11, 136-page book came into existence-slowly.

The scrounging around for pictures and finding a photographer to shoot the rest of the book finally has paid off with my writing this as July begins. Needless to say, I've learned a lot from the many mistakes I've made this year and I hope because of them, next year's book will be that much easier for me to assemble.

I apologize for the many people who don't appear within these pages and I want to thank my student publication co-workers, my friends and family for putting up with all my rough times.

I wish to extend very special thanks to my adviser Dr. George Steinmeyer, my Josten's representative John Penry, Sports Information Director Fred Neusch, my sister Allison and to Carol Alexander for all their help, support and advice.

Editor-Kimberly J. Taylor

I'm deeply indebted to the friends who supplied me with pictures: Doug Vannoy, Grace Kosel, Dale and Clay Coalson, Daniel Richardson, Karen Cumberland and to staff photographers Romeo Riojas, Delma Saenz and especially Pedro Gonzalez. Thanks. See ya'll on the road,

Kimberly J. Taylor
