Student Life

The food is awful; the friends aren't

Dorm life is always loud when you have to study and always quiet when you're ready to party. Someone else always gets to the washing machine before you do and a 3 a.m. meal is impossible to get. For all this, dorm life is a memorable experience that is best captured by the overstatements about the food and the unstated friendships that evolve from loneliness and develop into lifetime relationships.

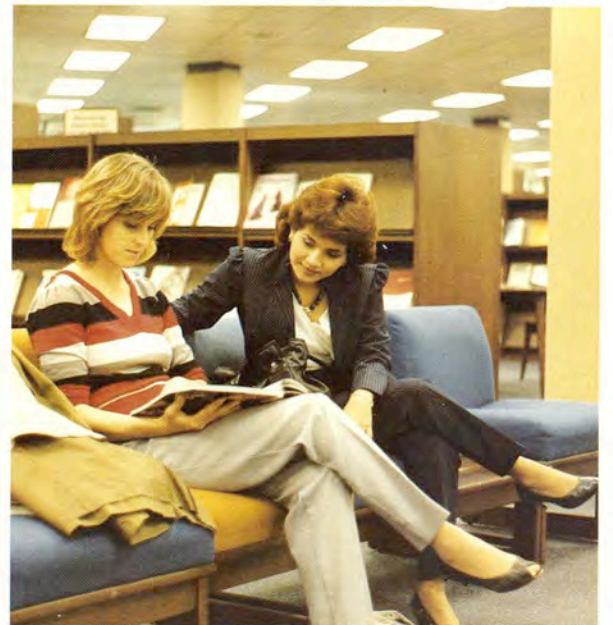

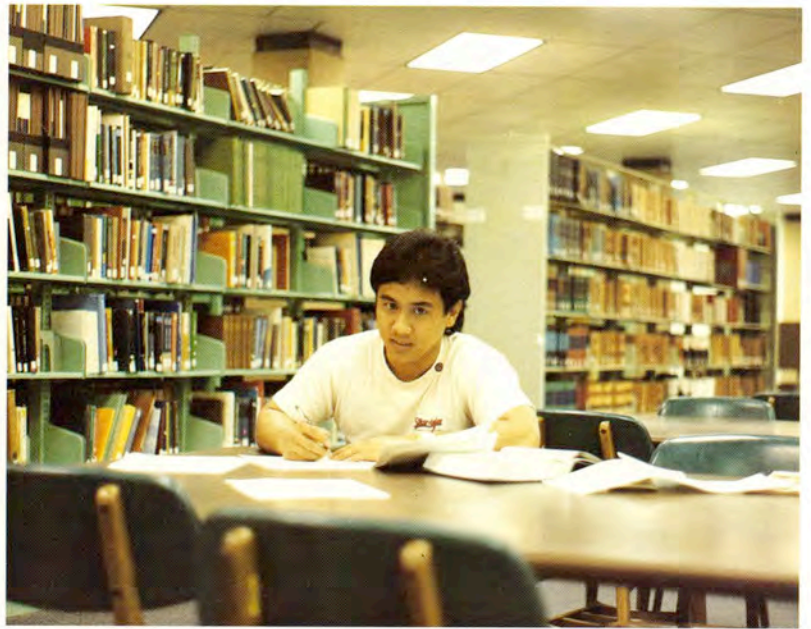

College life offers more than simple solutions; it gives friends, craziness and commitments

Students study, work and relax in the campus library and SUB Academics is the main purpose of any school, so at Texas A&I more library space and all-night study lounges are being constructed. However, breaks are necessary too, so the SUB offers video, pool, ping pong and pinball games in the game room and daytime television and nighttime parties in the Pub. Having money to spend is helpful, so student jobs on campus are made available by the Personnel Office.

Top right: Humberto Salinas learns about plants from Ag professor Leo Bailey while other students study in the Aggie lounge. Drusilla Lomas begins fitting her dress as Carol Gonzalez irons pieces of hers. Opposite top left: Students jump rope for heart; Paul Hunt and Stace Hayward "work" on their tans, and a scuba diver improves his technique. Lily Salazar goes for a strike and Ruby Garza, Letty Ramos, Pat Davila and Michael Thomas head to class.

Getting physical seems to be “the thing” to do these days. How to shape-up slogans are blasted at you from everywhere — the radio, television, movies, books — Everywhere!

What’s so new about telling people to get physically fit? P.E. teachers have been trying to pound the exercise syndrome into my head for years. I don’t like to run unless it’s early dawn, early evening or midnight. Running any other time in South Texas is like sticking your head into a very warm, muggy oven.

Swimming is great, but not indoors. Lifting weights would probably be good for me, but who has the time to go into the gym and learn how? Bottom line: You get physical; I’ll stay me. Editor’s note.

*Business and Engineering keeps the world in action
while liberal arts keeps us entertained and relaxed*

With the recent establishment of a core curriculum, controversy arose over students wasting their time and money in classes outside of their major areas. However, this argument is answered by better rounded students who know not only how to construct a business or building, but also know who Shakespeare is and how to enjoy the arts.

Opposite top: Melvin Machayo starts home while another student struggles with his computer program. Future engineers Santiago Zamora, Ida Flores, Keith Hutson and Cathie Hagan attend lab in the old building while a new one is being constructed. Above: The death scene from "The Bacchae." John Batchelder takes a break from his engineering classes to learn the pottery skills Lavonna Butter already knows.

Javelina band keeps the beat going on campus

Clockwise: Roy Gonzalez plays his French horn loudly and clearly. The Javelina band marches onto the field followed by the pep squad. The band forms a triangle during the Homecoming half-time show.

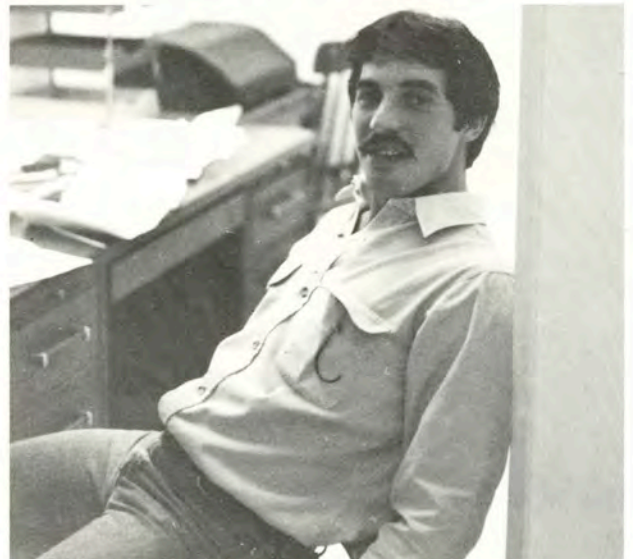

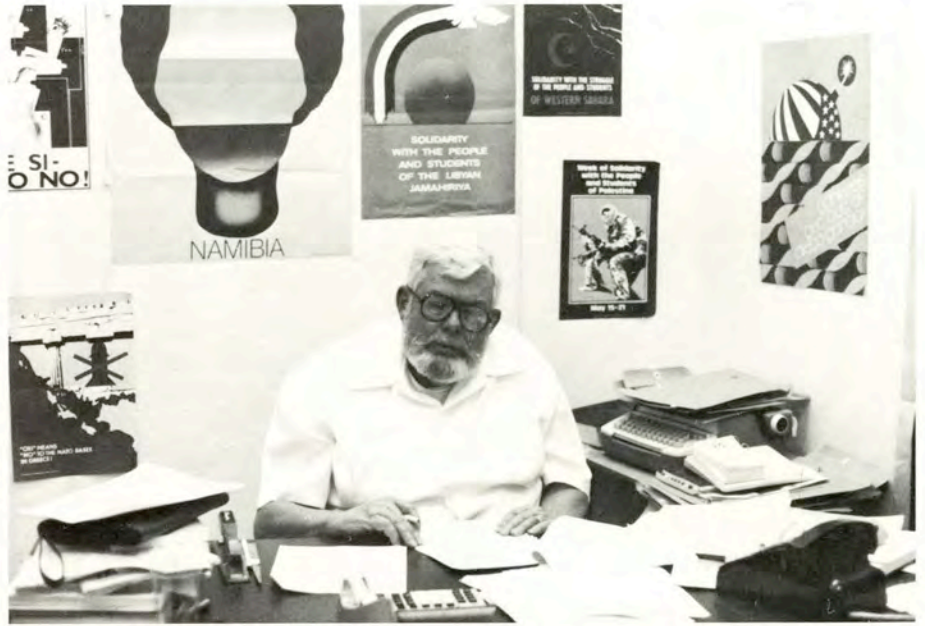

This year was the first time that Texas A&I had three male cheerleaders. These guys took a lot of flack from more "macho" men (who failed to show the student body their own acrobatic ability and spirit), but still performed their best along with the six female squad members. Cheerleaders from 3rd row left are: Nathan Prieto, Al Saldana, Michael DePudyt, Patti Braun, Voncille Harper, Liz Jalbert, Laura Martinez, Gracie Hinojosa, Linda Garcia, Linda Leyba and Velma Rivas.

Cheerleaders work hard creating unique routines and keeping spirits up

South Texan staff reports campus news

Dr. George Steinmeyer advises the Student Publication staffs and in his spare time teaches history. Linda Gonzalez manages the newspaper's advertising that pays the printing costs for stories reporter Cynthia Hayden (left), editor Sarah Coalson and Sports editor Tom Guerra write.

is a week of activities for sororities and little sister organizations that climaxes at events and ends when awards are presented at the Derby Day dance. Proceeds from the dance go to the Sigma Chi's national philanthropy, Colorado's Wallace Village for children with a minimal amount of brain damage.

Alumni attending Homecoming '83 kept busy by attending alumni meetings, playing golf and attending dinner, pre- and post-game parties. During the day, the surrounding area was invited to a large tent-covered, outside festival that featured booths of food, art and other creative works and lots of fun.

Texas A & I

Homecoming 1983

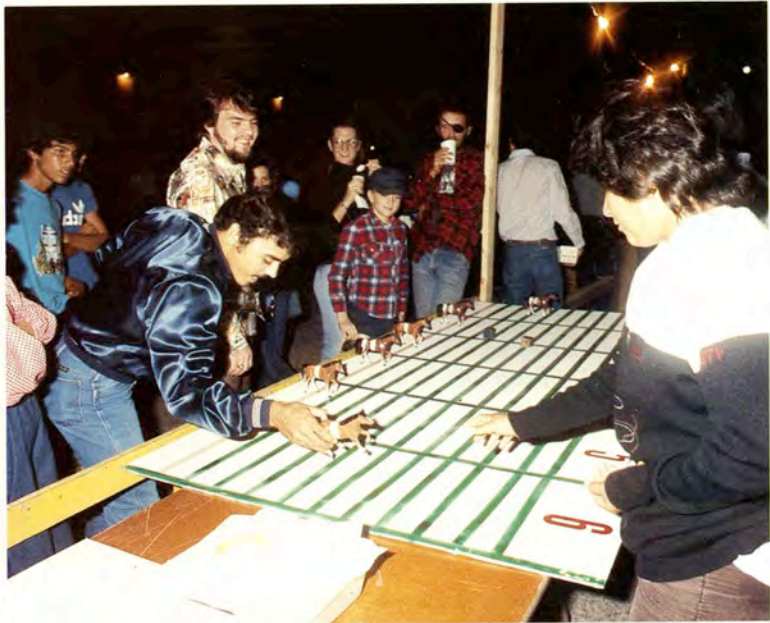

SWT Bobcats beat the Hogs twice in one season

Clockwise: The teams line up and land in a dog-piled tackle as fans, President Billy Joe Franklin and 1983 Miss Texas A&I Carolyn Scherry watch from the stands.

Team members Mark Miller, Kent Bednarski, Warren Polk, Greg Wright, Jesse Jones and Tommie Williams watch what's happening on the field; and Neal LaHue carries the ball to a hoped-for-touchdown.

Fall Carnival provides fun for students and raises money for groups

The Student Activities Board not only handled booth set-ups, tables and chairs for the Fall Carnival, but they also brought in live entertainment in the form of juggler Robert York (top left). Booths included the cake walk sponsored by the Pre-Law Society, horse races and the traditional jail.

Heather Franklin wins 1984 crown as Miss Texas A&I

This year's pageant coordinator Allison Taylor created a lively and well-run show. For the opening number, contestants were introduced after dancing to a jazz tune, and while they changed clothes for swimsuit and evening gown competitions, the audience was entertained by Craig Karges, a professional mentalist and illusionist.

Pageant contestants for 1984: Gracie Alvarez of Harlingen; Monica Bradshaw and Heather Franklin of Kingsville; Shelby Flanagan and Gracie Franco of Corpus Christi; Rosalinda Gonzalez of Sinton; Lori Hillmer of Orange Grove; Christina Jennings of Sugarland; Debbie Kay of Refugio; Shannon McKeown of Port Isabel; Diana Paez of Laredo; Michelle Pokrass of Brownsville Lynette Welker of Houston.

Opposite: Debbie Kay, Gracie Alvarez, Linda Gonzalez, Lori Hillmer and Diana Paez step to the music in the opening number, then come out for the swimsuit competition. Carolyn Scherry takes her last walk as Miss Texas A&I, and Gracie Alvarez waits to hear who will be the new queen. Mistress of Ceremonies Maureen O'Brien watches as Master of Ceremonies Craig Karges (professional mentalist and illusionist) elevates a table without touching it. This page: Heather Franklin becomes the 1984 queen and her reaction and that of the other girls surrounds the larger photo of the new queen with Carolyn and first runner-up Shannon McKeown.

Groups Compete at Playday

Playday is an event sponsored by the Alpha Delta Pi Sorority where the guys compete in various fun events instead of the girls.

This year, the sorority invited non-greeks to participate in a separate division and compete against the fraternity men for the title of Mr. Playday. Groups that took part in the fun included the Ags, ATOs, band, Delts, Kappa Sigs, Lambda Chis, ROTC and Sigma Chi's.

Awards were announced at a Pub night the same day where the ADPI's made a profit of $280 that was donated to their national philanthropy, the Ronald McDonald Houses.

Winners were: Greek events — Kappa Sigs, non-greek events — Ags, and Mr. Playday which went to ROTC's Nathan Prieto.

Clockwise: John Harris helps Karen Cumberland with her makeup and Debbie Mathis screams that she could have done a better job in the coaches' lip-stick-smear event. Greeks fight over the ice bucket as the music stops in this version of musical chairs. Opposite page clockwise: The Delts tug against the Kappa Sigs and lose while the Lambda Chis beat the Sigs and the Ags struggle against ROTC. Scott Gilbert and Roland Perez peel and eat a banana without using their hands; and Mr. Playday contestants line up to answer a question. (Nathan Prieto, the winner, is standing second from the right.)

with their four-posters

Clockwise: "I think I should reconsider my position," says Ana Martinez as the Kappa Sigs prepare to race the Lambda Chis (who made sure that their bed wouldn't fall apart this year). "And they're off" as Rusty Yeager pulls the gun trigger. The Sigma Chis prepare to race the ATOs whose little sister Sonja Hammock was peacefully reading a letter just a moment before. Little does she know that this year it's the bed she's on that will fall apart before the turn.

Albert Pena's got the next backgammon move; what will he do? Patrick Washburn, Paul Huffenberger and Kristi Thomasson don't care about the Kappa Sig Olympic games, they'd rather talk. This page counter-clockwise: Member of the winning dance team in the Delt Talent Show shows his "break dancing" technique. Sherri Standridge and Michelle Biediger dressed the part of Las Vegas dealers, as did Doug Manheimer, at ATO Casino Night.

Incoming freshmen have three opportunities to pre-register, meet A&I students and faculty and find out about college activities such as joining a fraternity or sorority, ROTC and the Students' Association. This pre-registration day was held April 26, at which time A&I gained many new students.

Campus Capers offers fun and competition for student groups

Counter-clockwise: Clay Davis tries to balance a bean on his nose in the beannie relay, Chi Omega sorority girls, winners in the girls division, goof off and Mark Ruszczyk gets egg on his face in the egg drop.

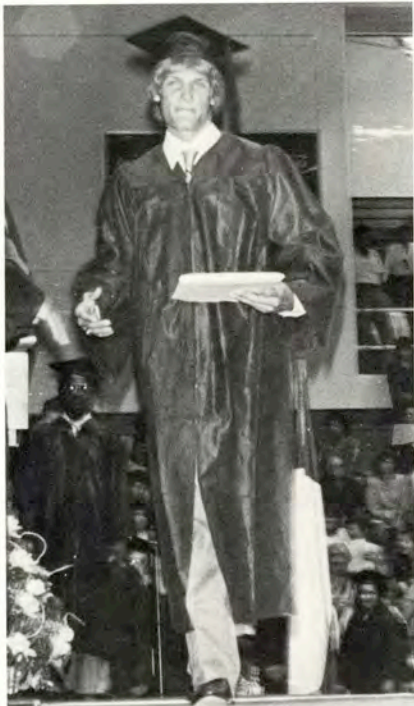

Clockwise: Kappa Alpha Psi, Sigma Chi and Kappa Sigma fraternity men compete in the South Texan ski patrol event, Andrew Molina entertains himself on the sidelines and Carolyn Scherrey explains to this couple the object of the infinite circle of ropes.

Kingsville citizens and A & I students bike for cystic fibrosis and happy graduates receive their diplomas

Opposite page counter-clockwise: May 1984 Texas A&I graduates wait to receive their diplomas. Keith Hutson drops President Franklin's hand after receiving his certificate in natural gas engineering, and Major (P) Viscente Trevino swears in Jesus Benavides, Hector Lopez, Orlando Salinas and Walter Shull into the United States Army as commissioned second lieutenants.

Break Time

It's a dog's life,

In Los Angeles there's a used car salesman (who got his start in Corpus Christi) whose commercial commercials always begin, "Here's Cal Worthington and his dog Spot." However, he's never used a dog in any of his commercials. On these two pages, we do. Proud owners and their dogs on this page include (above) Hugh Lieke, (above right) Carol Alexander and Mark Scott with their dog Lowenbrau and (below) Rueger Yeager by himself and with his owner Rusty — trying to get Rusty's beer.

or, don't we wish it were?

Lars Seifert (above) believes in comfort so much that he went into Stuart Campbell's room and destroyed a pillow just so the pillow would be given to him to lounge on. Lars knows how to get what he wants, for instance he knows that if he gives his owner, Carl, his paw when Carl snaps his fingers, that he can then chew on Carl's hand.

Closing

These two pages are in memory of all those who died during the past academic year who were known and loved by the students, staff, faculty and administration at Texas A & I University.

His Time

He sits
and listens,
He stands
and learns,
He turns
and evaporates;
In an instant,
he's gone.

This space is especially dedicated to all of the people who don't appear in this book. The strain on your eyes reading this is very similar to the strain I went through trying to convince you to at least have your class picture taken. Well, thanks to this space you can show your grandchildren this page, point to this box and say, "See, there I am!"

It was one of "those" days (Murphy's law in action) when Bob took my picture and though you can't tell, we were outside my office on a Manning Hall ledge. Jumping was a fleeting thought — any escape from the problems keeping me from finishing this book — but since I'm not real crazy about broken bones, I just crawled back through the window and went back to work.

I thought the second year of doing this would be easier than the first, but soon learned that all the old problems got replaced with new ones. Some of the pages probably seem rather blank and some pertinent copy may be missing (organizations). This doesn't mean I didn't try to find out who the people were, it just means nobody around seemed to know.

Due to lack of time and pictures, Break Time is a desperate measure. The same is true of my p.e. comment which is there to fill space (though it's true).

Anyway, special thanks go to Dr. Steinmeyer, Taylor Company and their representatives, Fred Nuesch, Patrick Washburn and his friends, Laura Charba, Kirk Towns and the South Texan files.

I also thank Lars, Carl Seifert's dog, who's been an excellent friend. KJT.
