

Rounding Up The A&I Exes

Cadet-Midshipman Walton Kenneth Ballew, U.S.M.M.C., is now at the Merchant Marine Academy at Greack Neck, L. I., N. Y. A sophomore agriculture major, he enlisted in the Merchant Marines last March.

Lt. H. E. RAINBOLT, JR., won his commission as an artillery officer at Fort Sill, Oklahoma, on January 7. Rainbolt, the son of Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Rainbolt of Kingsville, attended A&I in 1939 and 1940 and enlisted in the artillery in 1942.

Graduating and receiving his bombardier's wings and a second lieutenant's commission, CAPEN SIMONS, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Simons, Jr., has been transferred from Albuquerque to Salt Lake City. Simons attended King High School and was a student at A&I before entering the air corps last year.

Graduating and receiving his bombardier wings and a second lieutenant's commission, Capen Simons, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Simons, Jr., has been transferred from Albuquerque, New Mexico, to Salt Lake City.

Capen attended King High and A&I College. He was accepted for training by the Army Air Forces more than a year ago, but his training was interrupted when an operation to correct a sinus condition became necessary. Recovering from this, Capen stepped back into the tough training course to win his Bombardier's wings last week.

His mother and Miss Edwygean Nelson of this city witnessed the graduation ceremony and returned to this city Tuesday.

Capen Simons, 22-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Simons, Jr., soon will be dropping bombs on the Japs or Nazis. He left on Easter Sunday for Santa Ana, Calif., and began training as an Army Air Corps bombardier on April 10. He should be commissioned and assigned to duty in September. He graduated from King High with the class of 1936, and attended A&I for two years.
